PANGILINAN

Sen. Kiko in limbo after LP defection

By TJ Burgonio

MORE than anybody else, Senate Majority Leader Francis Pangilinan stands to suffer the worst political backlash from the Liberal Party's withdrawal of support from President Macapagal-Arroyo.

By casting his lot with LP senators who on Friday asked the President to step down, the promising Pangilinan has virtually compromised his political career, an administration lawmaker said yesterday.

"Kiko is eyeing reelection in 2007. I doubt if the opposition will pick him up considering his role in the canvassing for the presidential votes. I'm not sure if Gloria will still include him in the administration ticket because of what happened," he said.

"So where will he go?" added the senator, who asked not to be named.

Pangilinan joined Senate President Franklin Drilon and Sen. Rodolfo Biazon and 17 other LP members in calling for the President to step down at the height of the clamor for her resignation last Friday.

The LP group in the Senate, including Sen. Manuel Roxas II, has drawn criticisms for their move and been virtually isolated from the administration bloc, according to some of the colleagues.

Pangilinan, one of the President's most loyal and trusted lieutenants in the chamber until his party's defection, agreed with his colleague's observations, saying that could be "partly true."

"I would like to think that there is more to being a public servant than ensuring one's reelection victory. If it's my destiny, I can always retire from politics early and serve the nation in some other way," he added.

Still, the senator said "a lot can happen between now and 2007."

Pangilinan, married to popular singer-actress Sharon Cuneta, won a Senate seat in May 2001 for a six-year term.

He is best remembered for his role as co-chair of the congressional committee that conducted the canvassing of the votes for President and Vice President last year, where he drew criticisms for the committee's "lack of transparency." Opposition had derisively called him Mr. Noted, for allegedly dismissing motions by saying "Noted."

When Congress opened in July last year, Pangilinan was elected Majority Floor Leader. And until the LP's withdrawal, he's been perceived as a good material for Vice President.

The administration senator, who asked not to be named, said that unlike Pangilinan, Biazon won't be seeking reelection until 2010. "If at all, he has six years to repair [his image]," he said.

Drilon himself is in danger of losing his grip on power following the LP's move, administration senators had predicted.

F4 member in car crash

TAIPEI—Vic Chou, a member of F4 of "Meteor Garden" fame, crashed his NT$8 million black racing car on the Taipei expressway, hitting two other cars on the road in the process, in the wee morning hours Thursday. He was speeding at 120 km per hour and overtaking the vehicle in front when he lost control of his car. All three drivers were not injured. Chou's car was wrecked. The three cars ended up in a pile-up.

Chou passed the alcohol test given by the police. At the police precinct where he was brought, the celebrity with a big following in and outside Taiwan pulled down his cap and appeared to be in a bad mood. He apologized to the two drivers and offered to pay for the damages he caused.

Chou, a racing aficionado, was known to be very fond of driving his racing car even to school. Sometimes he would invite his classmates to join him for a race in the expressway.

He Acerra also named Peter Nerya to Corporate Media Affairs Executive Director, in the top post of the National Authority for Broadcast, which was created by President Neri.

On Monday, the President also announced the appointment of former and current Margarita River as the new Deputy Secretary replacing Cesar Padolina.

"It is a good team. It's the kind of team that I can leave the day to day affairs of government with while I work on the fundamental reforms," the Acerra said in a speech before visiting Philippine Airlines to Manila.

Little interference

The Cabinet secretary would get "a 25% political interference as possible even from me" while the communication on pushing for constitutional reforms, the President said.

Currently, these agencies are headed by officers in charge.

Businessmen were generally happy with the new signals.

Response

Sergio Orla-Quila, Philippine Express Communications Inc. president, said that the new economic team was a "very impressive one" and that the President chose well considering the circumstances.

Francis Chan, president of the Association of Philippine-Chinese

Chambers of Commerce, said the President gave a guarantee to transparency and integrity in filling up the economic posts. "We needed people who could hit the ground running," Chan said.

Francis Chan, Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry president, said Neri was qualified for the job considering his active role in PCCI's small and medium enterprise program and investment promotion for six years.

He Acerra spoke generally of the new Cabinet appointments, specifically Neri, as the leader of the new economic team as a team secretary.

"The stock market went up when his name was announced," said the President, who also noted that the price had dropped before the 30-to-the-dollar crash in the last four days.

Pre-prior plan

In his speech, the President highlighted the stock market between his administration's clear development plans and the opposition's lack of economic strategy.

"I make up every day early and work until very late night because I have a plan, my 10-point pre-prior plan, and it's working," he said.

The President also criticized the opposition in the Senate for its inaction on the proposed media reform law.

"After we shall begin to plan our case in the halls of the Supreme Court so that we can get the implementation of the law on track to put our fiscal house in order," the President said.

The report also indicated that the Acerra had a hand in the Supreme Court's decision to issue a temporary restraining order on the VAT law on July 1, the start of the implementation.

The VAT will take prices of goods and services.

Americans losing faith in Bush, survey suggests

UNITED STATES—A new survey suggests that Americans are losing faith in President George W. Bush, particularly in his handling of the war in Iraq.

The survey, conducted by a leading opinion pollster, found that a majority of Americans believe that Bush has not done enough to bring the war in Iraq to a swift and decisive end.

The survey also found that a significant number of Americans believe that Bush has not been honest in his reporting of the progress of the war in Iraq.

The survey results suggest that Bush's approval rating is declining, and that he may face significant challenges in the upcoming midterm elections.

Regulator needed for housing personality

TO THE EDITOR: I am writing to you regarding the current state of the housing market in the United States. The housing market has been in a state of decline for several years now, and it is not showing any signs of improvement. The current state of the housing market is a result of several factors, including the subprime mortgage crisis, the collapse of the housing bubble, and the failure of the government to regulate the housing market properly. The government has a responsibility to regulate the housing market and to ensure that the housing market is fair and equitable for all Americans. The current state of the housing market is a result of the government's failure to regulate the housing market properly. The government has a responsibility to regulate the housing market and to ensure that the housing market is fair and equitable for all Americans.

Mindoro co-op questions island power supply deal

Protesters in Manila, Philippines, oppose a proposed power supply deal between the government and a private company.

MANILA, Philippines — A coalition of Mindoro-based cooperatives and environmental groups has filed a petition with the Philippine Commission on Elections (COMELEC) to annul a proposed power supply agreement between the government and a private company.

The coalition, known as the Mindoro Environmental and Social Justice Alliance (MESJA), claims that the deal, which would grant a 25-year monopoly to a private power company, violates the country's anti-monopoly laws and the rights of local communities to a clean environment.

MESJA leaders say the deal was negotiated in secret and without the participation of local residents. They argue that the agreement would lead to the degradation of Mindoro's forests and the displacement of indigenous people.

The proposed deal, known as the Mindoro Electric Power Corporation (MEPC) agreement, would allow the private company to build and operate a large power plant on the island. In return, the company would supply electricity to the island at a fixed rate.

However, MESJA contends that the deal is unfair to local residents, who would be forced to pay high prices for electricity while the private company profits. They also fear that the power plant would pollute the island's water and air.

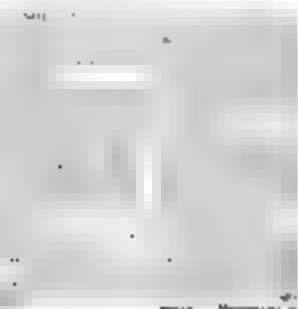

The petition filed with COMELEC seeks to have the deal declared null and void. If successful, this would prevent the deal from being implemented until a more transparent and equitable agreement is reached.

MANILA, Philippines — JMA ever says Mindanao investments rose 14.2%.

The report, released by the JMA, shows that investments in Mindanao grew by 14.2% in 1999, compared to a 12.5% increase in 1998. This growth was driven by a surge in investments in the manufacturing and services sectors.

However, the report also notes that investments in the mining and agriculture sectors remained relatively flat. This is due to a combination of factors, including a lack of government support and a decline in global commodity prices.

JMA officials say that the government is working to address these issues by providing incentives for investment in the mining and agriculture sectors. They also plan to improve the regulatory environment to make it easier for investors to do business in Mindanao.

Despite these challenges, the report is optimistic about the future of Mindanao's economy. It predicts that continued growth in the manufacturing and services sectors will lead to a steady increase in investments over the next few years.

The diagram shows a reaction vessel containing a solution of FeCl₃ and a solution of FeSO₄. The reaction is initiated by the addition of a solution of FeCl₃. The reaction is monitored by the change in the color of the solution. The reaction is represented by the equation: FeCl₃ + FeSO₄ → FeCl₂ + Fe₂(SO₄)₃. The reaction is exothermic, and the heat of reaction is measured by a thermometer. The reaction is carried out in a water bath at a constant temperature. The reaction is repeated for different concentrations of the solution. The results are shown in Table 1.

Meralco to start final phase of P30-B refund

By Joseph L. ...

Manila, May 11 (PNA) — Meralco is expected to start the final phase of its P30-billion refund program to its customers, according to a source familiar with the company's plans.

The source said that Meralco is currently in the process of finalizing the details of the refund program, which is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The refund program is a result of a settlement reached between Meralco and the Department of Energy (DOE) regarding the company's overbilling of customers.

Meralco has been paying its customers back for overbilling them for the past several years. The company has already refunded a total of P10 billion to its customers, but it is expected to refund a total of P30 billion over the next few years.

The refund program is expected to be a significant relief for Meralco's customers, who have been paying more than they should have for electricity. The company is expected to start the final phase of the refund program by the end of the year, and it is expected to complete the program by the end of 2001.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program on the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program was designed to be a safe and effective means of increasing physical activity in sedentary women. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions included a warm-up, a low-impact aerobic workout, and a low-intensity strength training routine. The results of the study showed that the program had a positive effect on the physical fitness of the women. The women who participated in the program showed significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, muscular strength, and body composition. The program was well-tolerated by the women, and they reported feeling more energetic and confident after completing the program. The results of this study suggest that a low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program can be an effective means of increasing physical activity in sedentary women.
